HOOVER ENLISTS CABINET IN FIGHT ECONOMY PROGRAM

Presents Each Member With "Economy Yard Stick" on Which it is Outlined Scale of Budget Estimates

(By the United Press)

Washington, President Hoover Friday carried to the cabinet his fight for drastic economy in government.

He presented each cabinet member at Friday's cabinet meeting with an "economy yardstick" on pasteboard. The government's revenues were outlined on one side and expenditures on the other. A long red space at one end of the revenue side, covering nearly a third of the stick was marked "deficit."

Each member of the cabinet was asked to go over estimates for appropriations in his department and submit specific proposals for reduction of costs.

The president, personally directing the battle for economy, desired to have detailed information to present at his meeting Saturday at the White House with members of the House special economy committee. He expected to confer with separate cabinet members later on Friday.

The cabinet members on leaving Friday's meeting were non-committal as to economies that could be effected in any of their departments.

The "budget yardstick," as the device handed the cabinet members by the president is known, was made originally by customs commissioner, F. X. A. Eble. He used it to illustrate lectures.

Secretary of Treasury Mills showed one to President Hoover, who had copied it made.

On this "budget yardstick" the red part indicating the deficit, is 18 inches long, or exactly half of the measuring rod. On the other side of the stick practically 18 inches is taken up by payments to veterans of foreign wars, interest on the public debt, retirement of the public debt and trust funds and refunds.

Commissioner Eble pointed out that the 36 inches was scaled to expenditures of exactly $124,504,261.11 an inch.

His scale of the budget estimates as outlined on this yardstick follows:

Interest on public debt, 4 7-8 inches—$695,000,000.

Retirement of the public debt, 3 3-8 inches—$1,946,000.

Trust funds and so forth, 2 1-8 inches—$256,784,600.

Veterans of former wars, 7 7-8 inches—$953,535,930.

National defenses, army and navy 5 3-4 inches—$523,231,300.

Special aids (food relief, agriculture, etc.), 4 1-4 inches—$535,896,950.

Miscellaneous, 3 1-2 inches—$432,355,550.

Total 36 inches—$4,482,153,400.

On the other side of the yardstick are following diversions:

Income taxes, 8 5-8 inches—$1,076,000,000.

Internal revenue taxes, 4 1-4 inches—$526,000,000.

Customs duties, 3 inches—$375,000,000.

Miscellaneous, 2 1-8 inches—$235,000,000.

Total 18 inches—$2,242,000,000.

Bishop, Who Might Have Been King of Great Britain, Buried in Los Angeles

Los Angeles—Simple funeral services were to be arranged Friday for a man who might have been king upon the British throne.

Devoid in death as in life of the honors to which he laid claim, John Guelph, 71, bishop of the Wesleyan Episcopal church, was to receive the last rites of that faith.

His death Wednesday night of a heart attack left unsolved a mystery of English court life during the career of Edward VII, whose legitimate and private recognized son he claimed to be. Guelph called himself Prince John Guelph de Windsor, declaring himself to be the first born son of Edward VII and the Princess of Watterbury of the line of Henry IV, born as the issue of a secret marriage which he claimed was ended by the wrath of Queen Victoria, but never annulled.

His claims were not recognized by George V, the present ruler, but his representations stirred the British empire a short time before the outbreak of war in 1914.

Guelph had lived in Los Angeles for many years. He came to San Francisco in 1931 and married Jennie Warde Hays, daughter of a prominent San Francisco physician, who with a son, Lionel Victor Guelph survives. The son is a Los Angeles broker.

SEIZE MOVING VAN WITH 995 GALLONS ALKY AT ST. CLOUD

FEDERAL AGENTS NAB FARGO FARGO, MOORHEAD MEN AS OWNERS TRUCK, LIQUOR

St. Paul, Minn.—A moving van containing 995 gallons of alcohol was seized at St. Cloud Thursday night by federal prohibition agents, and two rum runners arrested.

Those under arrest are Lloyd C. Quinn, Fargo, N. D., owner of the truck, and Joseph Farrell, Moorhead, Minn., alleged owner of the liquor.

"The owners of the truck made every effort to conceal the fact that liquor was being transported by tying furniture on the rear of the van," C. W. Williams, deputy state dry administrator, said.

Williams said that it was the first time in the history of the northwest prohibition department that liquor had been transported in a moving van.

The truck carried the name "Quinn Bros. Transfer Co., Fargo, N. D.," painted on the outside. Williams said, and was enroute from Wisconsin distilleries to Fargo.

MURRAY LOSES JOB CO. COMMISSIONER

St. Paul, Minn.—The removal of Stuart Murray, Virginia, from his post of county commissioner by St. Louis county court action for corrupt practices was affirmed by the state supreme court today.

The action to remove Murray was started by 25 voters, most of whose charges were found to be true by the St. Louis county court, and part of them were found true by the high court.

The taxpayers claimed that a "voluntary campaign committee" which spent more than $3,000 really was Murray's personal committee.

The law limits his personal expenditures to $1,333. The supreme court held there was not sufficient evidence to sustain this finding, but it affirmed a finding that Murray had promised jobs to men if they would work for him during the campaign. It was on this ground that the high court affirmed the St. Louis county decision.

ANNOUNCE TWO CHANGES INSTITUTION HEADS

St. Paul.—The state board of control today announced two changes in superintendents of state institutions.

Miss M. Patterson becomes superintendent of the Sauk Centre school for girls and Mrs. Ruluth Devney, Minneapolis, will head the Shakopee reformatory.

ROOSEVELT BRANDS ADMINISTRATION OF HOOVER ONE OF "BIG BUSINESS"

Albany, N. Y.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt has cast his lot with the progressives and "infantry of our economic army" in his first national bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Describing the present crisis as one "more grave than the emergency Hoover administration" has sought temporary relief from the top down rather than permanent relief from the bottom up.

The governor's appeal for support and attack on the "relief measures" of the administration, came during a 10 minute address from the study of the executive mansion.

Roosevelt cited three immediate needs, among the dozen or so he indicated would be outlined later, as:

"Restoration of the farmers' buying power, relief to the small banks and home-owners, and a reconstructed tariff policy."

His address indicated intentions to label the Hoover administration a "big business administration." He said:

"The $2,000,000,000 which President Hoover and congress have put at the disposal of the big banks, the railroads, and the corporations of the nation, is not for the home owner or land owner, the relation of these persons to the great banks of Chicago and New York is pretty remote."

"Here should be an objective of the government itself; to provide at least as much assistance to the little fellow as it is now giving to the large banks and corporations. That is an example of building from the bottom up."

TRANSFER BOARD'S FUNCTIONS FARM UNIT HELD LEGAL

House Refuses to Increase Appropriation by Voting Down Amendment Providing $380,000 Additional Funds

BULLETIN

Washington.—The house voted late Friday to maintain the farm board, after a two day struggle with forces seeking its abolition.

An amendment proposing to cut down the board's million dollar appropriation and thereby force liquidation of its investments was defeated, 23 to 152.

Washington.—A straight cut vote on abolition of the federal farm board was assured in the house Friday when the Vinson amendment, transferring the board's functions to the agriculture department, was held to be applicable to the independent office appropriation bill.

Refuse Increase Fund

Washington.—The house Friday refused to increase the appropriation for the federal farm board by voting down the Buchanan amendment which would have added $380,000 to the board's funds.

The vote was 123 to 120.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN SWEEP IN NIAGARA

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—An unidentified man was swept over Niagara Falls Friday when he attempted to evade a reservation patrolman who wished to question him.

The man dropped a hat bearing a Cleveland, O. store's name, before he climbed over the railing along the Niagara river and fell into the water.

Patrolman Joseph M. Theriault, of the reservation police, said he saw the man—about 6 feet tall and weighing close to 250 pounds—wandering around the reservation about 1:15 a. m.

Theriault ran up and grasped him by the collar. They tussled a few moments, but the stranger was heavier, and slipped onto the narrow bank between the railing and the river, then disappeared over the falls.

LOSES PLANE DASH FATHER'S FUNERAL

Campbell, Minn.—A frantic dash by airplane from California failed to bring Miss Rhea Wenger here in time for the funeral of her father, J. M. Wenger, cashier of the Security State bank, it was revealed today.

A few hours after the funeral services were over yesterday, Miss Wenger arrived in a hired automobile after being forced to land in airplanes three times.

Wenger died Saturday and plane was sent to his daughter. The word she chartered was forced down twice by engine trouble and at last her pilot refused to continue.

Miss Wenger notified the manager of the air line service who sent her private plane and a special pilot to finish the journey. Trouble developed in the plane and the pilot cracked up in a plowed field near Carona, S. D. The plane was smashed and Miss Wenger slightly injured.

STRANGERS TALK WITH LINDBERGH AT HOPEWELL HOME

FLIER REQUESTS NORFOLK CITIZENS TO CONTINUE EFFORTS IN SEARCH

Hopewell, N. J.—Two visitors approached at the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Friday and were permitted to confer with the flier in connection with investigation of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping.

One identified himself as Charles F. Ward, a banker of North Arlington, N. J., who said he had an appointment.

The second was a stocky man who claimed he had paid his way from Martha's Vineyard, the district Lindbergh visited by airplane over the week end. He was questioned by police, then escorted to the home.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh requested three Norfolk men to continue their efforts for the return of his kidnapped child.

The Norfolk negotiators, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, John Hughes Curtis, shipbuilder, and the Rev. H. Dodson-Peacock, announced that they were "ready to leave at a minute's notice" when able to resume contact with those they believe are holding the kidnapped infant.

Admiral Burrage, spokesman, did not hold his last press conference owing to a misunderstanding regarding the questions newspaper men were to ask. Earlier, however, in answer to a question he made this statement:

"Yes, Col. Lindbergh has asked us to continue."

CALEDONIA URGES FEDERAL WAGE CUT

Caledonia, Minn.—A petition requesting the reduction of senate and house salaries and asking that every effort be made to diminish or abolish the many commissions and other extravagant expense was forwarded today to Senators Shipstead and Schall and Representative Christgau.

The petition was signed by Mayor F. A. Groening, Elmer Deters, president of the Caledonia Commercial club, and by a large number of representative business men of this district.

The petition asked that our senators and congressmen reduce their salaries at least 20 per cent, cease giving the taxpayers' money to the widows or parents of deceased legislators.

JURY OF RACIAL MIXTURES TO HEAR INSANITY PLEA IN "HONOR" TRIAL

Copyright 1932 by United Press
Honolulu, T. H.—A jury of many strange racial mixtures will decide the fate of an American society matron and three navy men who stood ready Friday to plead the unwritten law against charges of slaying a brown-skinned native youth.

Twelve men, ranging from Nordic blonds to tanned sons of the South Seas, were bound together by a common oath to uphold the law in Hawaii's most famous murder case.

Defense and prosecution had brought a balance between whites and browns before agreeing on a panel.

Two other figures entered the case today as the defendants waited at Pearl Harbor navy base for resumption of the trial Monday.

They were Drs. Edward Huntington Williams and James Orblison, Los Angeles psychiatrists, who arrived incognito in response to an "urgent summons."

With the jury finally chosen after four days of legal maneuvering, the presence of the alienists was regarded as Clarence Darrow's first "surprise" in bolstering the defense's case.

Thus "alarm clock" or temporary insanity—tantamount to the unwritten law—became the most likely plea for Mrs. Granville Roland Fortescue, middle-aged New York and Washington socialite; her young son-in-law, Lt. (JG) Thomas H. Massie, and two seamen, Edward Lord and Albert Jones.

The United Press exclusively predicted the insanity defense soon after Mrs. Fortescue and the others were indicted on second degree murder charges in the slaying of Joe Kahahawai, Jr., husky young Hawaiian street car conductor.

Winn indirectly admitted the alienists will appear at the trial, which will continue Monday with Prosecutors John Kelly and Barry Ulrich presenting first evidence by which they hope to demand life imprisonment for the defendants.

As described by defense attorneys alarm clock insanity is a form of temporary aberration to which otherwise normal persons may be subject. A man reminded of some terrific mental or physical strain can completely lose control of himself, psychologists explain.

REBELS BLOCK PORT IN ECUADOR; CHILE CABINET OUSTED

Dissatisfaction Over Financial Policies of Governments, Aggravated by Unemployment, Blamed for Uprisings

Guayaquil, Ecuador.—All ships coming to Guayaquil were ordered detained Friday by Commander Ildefonso Mendoza, leader of the revolt which began on the coast Thursday. The order was designed to furnish the rebels with money, food and fuel.

Authorities feared that if foreign vessels were molested, international complications would result.

Mendoza Rebel Chief
Mendoza was proclaimed "supreme chief" today by the rebels.

The British, Swiss and Dutch consuls asked the government to guarantee against the molestation of foreign ships.

The government decided to send a battery of artillery (126 men) and a battalion of chasseurs (268 men) to Guayaquil. An airplane was sent to reconnoiter.

The government also sent a small force of troops and police to Puerto Libertad.

By United Press
The world economic crisis brought a revolution to Ecuador Friday and in Chile resulted in the overthrow of the cabinet, a run on the national bank, and threats of serious political disorders.

Dissatisfaction with the financial policies of the government, plus continued unemployment and economic stagnation, were considered responsible for the Ecuador uprising in which rebels seized warships, fired on a Dutch passenger vessel on which an ex-president was a passenger, and attempted to blockade the port of Guayaquil.

Chile's economic and financial troubles were the worst in the nation's history. Citizens exchanged 2,000,000 paper pesos for silver in a run on the Banco Central; a radical leader headed the new cabinet; troops were ready for emergency; the crisis was precipitated by the government's efforts to abandon the gold standard, by stagnation in the copper and nitrate industries, soaring food prices, increasing unemployment, and efforts of radicals to assume control of the country.

Martial Law Expected

Santiago, Chile.—Proclamation of martial law throughout Chile was expected momentarily Friday after the country's economic plight and political unrest had caused the resignation of the cabinet and the threat of revolution.

The present government took office last October after a series of rapid political changes. The administration has been very insecure due to the economic plight of the country and criticism of the government's financial policies.

Congress gave President Juan Esteban Montero authority to declare martial law at his discretion. Troops were confined to barracks. Machine guns were set up at strategic positions.

A new cabinet was sworn in shortly after midnight. The crisis was precipitated by the government's inability to pass legislation for abandonment of the gold standard, resulting in a run on banks here and street demonstrations against the government.

The new cabinet was headed by Victor Robles, radical leader.

Seize Two Ships

Guayaquil, Ecuador.—Revolutionists Friday attempted to blockade the port of Guayaquil after seizing control of two ships of the Ecuadorian navy and firing on a Dutch passenger ship passing the fort at Punta Piedras.

The rebels held control of the port, which commands passage along the Guayas river between Guayaquil and the Gulf of Guayaquil.

The rebel leader, Commander Ildefonso Mendoza, sailed north aboard the cruiser Cotopaxi with arms and ammunition taken from the port. He hoped to recruit rebels in his native Manabí province. The Cotopaxi, only cruiser in the Child Fighting For Life After Eating Pound Salt

New York.—Nine months old Samuel Charlup is fighting for his life Friday because some little children playing around his baby carriage dropped a one-pound bag of salt in it for him to eat, "so he would make faces."

Samuel ate handful after handful of the salt. It inflamed his bronchial tubes, his larynx, his left lung and trachea.

His mother, looking out of the window, saw her child eagerly downing the salt. Rushing out, she found the bag of salt broken open and spilled all over the carriage covers. Samuel was thirsty, he had convulsions.

SENATE TAX ROW STRUGGLE RICH MAN AGAINST POOR

AGGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS FORMING "POOR MAN'S" COALITION

Washington.—The senate tax dispute is developing into a struggle of rich man against poor man.

Progressive Republicans and Democrats are forming a "poor man's coalition" to seal levies on the wealthy even higher than those which Secretary of Treasury Ogden L. Mills condemned as semi-socialistic and virtually confiscatory.

Mills, leading the battle against higher taxes on the rich, has a tremendous fortune. His yacht is new, large and luxurious. As part owner of the Wheatley stable, he combines sport with statesmanship.

One of his leading senate antagonists in the controversy over economic theories is Senator George W. Norris, Rep., Neb.—a street car rider who probably never has been on a private yacht in all his life.

The secretary says the 45 per cent maximum estate tax in the revenue bill must come down to 25 per cent or the capitalistic system will be imperiled. Norris said the rate must go up. Likewise with surtaxes on large incomes. Back benches of both parties are organizing to turn out the pockets of some multi-millionaires, despite insistence of their leaders that little revenue is available in the higher brackets because depression has cut incomes.

Norris would give "very liberal exemptions" from inheritance taxes to permit families to be provided for "even in luxury."

Ecuadorian navy, was built in 1884 and is equipped with two ancient guns.

The council of ministers gave President Alfredo Baquerino Moreno full powers to combat the uprising, and he sent troops against revolutionists operating on land.

Loyal forces were unable to reach rebels aboard the gunboat Cotopaxi, or to advance toward Fort Punta Piedra, commanding the entrance to Guayaquil harbor. They had no boats large enough to transport important units and lacked trucks for operations through swamps, infested with mosquitoes and pests.

The rebels fired a Dutch steamer Dobbenraven in an attempt to capture ex-President Gen. Leonidas Plaza and hold him as a hostage. The shipper of the Dobbenraven disregarded the rebel command to halt. Several rounds were fired from the cruiser "Cotopaxi."

A customs guard aboard the Dutch ship was wounded in protecting the 12-year-old daughter of Gen. Plaza. The general and his family were returning from Europe. They landed safely here.

A CUPFUL OF HILLS BROS COFFEE PROVES THAT CONTROLLED ROASTING MAKES A FINER FLAVOR

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

a little at a time

. . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . "a little at a time."

Perfect roasting by Hills Bros' patented process always develops the perfect flavor of the coffee-berries

Roasts "a little at a time" instead of in bulk

Instead of roasting in bulk, Hills Bros. use their patented Controlled Roasting process. The coffee flows evenly, continuously through the roasters . . . a little at a time. Every berry is done to the perfect degree. Naturally, a perfect roast results in perfect flavor!

Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale! The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh.

Order Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

THE BRAINERD CHORAL CLUB—

An outstanding musical organization of singers, the Brainerd Choral club for the last six years has been steadily gaining in popularity reaching a new peak in favor this week with invitation to appear on the program at the national convention of the parent-teachers association in May. Organized quite by accident, the choral club has appeared before many gatherings and the favor with which the offerings have been received bespeaks the great merit and unusual ability of its members.

Brainerd should be proud of this group of singers. It not only is pleasing to have them in our midst but it is particularly significant that outside organizations throughout the state have invited the choral club to present several numbers. The publicity it gives Brainerd, after all, is secondary to the honor that accompanies such presentations but it cannot be overlooked as a great asset of the city.

THE ARMY PAY CUT—

Formation of a "Citizens' national safety committee" to protest against reductions in army pay scales tentatively approved by Congress is noted in recent dispatches from Washington.

A broadside sent out by the committee asserts that the pay reduction is being supported by "pacifist, war-resister, atheist, socialist, communist, un-American and anti-American groups."

That makes is sound pretty dreadful. If those oddly-assorted groups are able to sway Congress, is there any hope for the republic?

And why is it that one cannot suggest that the army or navy share in the government's economy program without having a lot of names like those applied to him?

THE HUNTER FOR GOLD—

The paper didn't give very much space to the death of John E. Lee, the Montana prospector who was known in the west for decades as "Golden Jack". They just told us enough about the man to whet our appetites and make us wish we could know a little more.

"Golden Jack" was, by profession, a seeker for gold; and if there is an odder or more attractive job on earth, it is hard to think just what it may be. He had spent most of his life tramping over the western ranges, and the fortune he sought always eluded him; but even without having known the man it is not hard to guess that he had no regrets and that he would have followed the same course if he had been given a chance to start all over again.

For that is the attitude of the typical gold-hunter always has; and it is because we all have a dim realization of the advantages which such a philosophy offers that he usually feel a sneaking bit of envy when we read about such chaps.

The gold-seeker is out for money, of course, and he always has, shining ahead of him somewhere, a lofty vision of great riches; but he generally knows in his heart that that vision is never going to be realized, and the knowledge doesn't disconcert him in the least. The hunt itself is satisfying enough; and there is where he has the bulge on the rest of us.

For we're all after hidden treasure, in one way or another. We all chase a vision, and we put up with monotony and self-denial and so on for year after year with the notion that the reward we're after will make it all up to us, once we get it. But usually we never get it at all, and in the end all we have is the memory of the hunt for it.

And that, we're often forced to admit, isn't enough. Hunting for real gold on western mountains is one thing, and plugging away at a job in a city office or factory is something else again. The prospector wins even when he loses. The rest of us stake everything on the gamble for material success, and if we don't get it we've little else to fall back on.

AIR CONDITIONING—

The progress that industrial engineers are making in air conditioning devices makes it apparent that this new field of activity will become more and more important during the coming decade.

The Chesapeake & Ohio railroad the other day announced inauguration of a new fast passenger train, the George Washington, on which every coach and Pullman will be fitted with an elaborate air conditioning apparatus. Even temperatures will be maintained constantly, dust will be eliminated, and the passengers will be kept comfortably warm in winter and comfortably cool in summer.

That such devices will become common equipment on all crack passenger trains before long seems probable. That they will, in addition, come into general use in homes and apartments is also probable.

The dime-a-dance girl

By JOAN CLAUION

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful 20-year-old, loves LARRY HARROWGATE, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl Ellen agrees to marry STEVEN BARCLAY, 57 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Barclay, who has been married before. Scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from LETA GRAYSON, dancer. To avoid talk Ellen and Barclay are secretly married.

They drive to his Long Island home, deserted except for FERGUS, the butler. There Barclay suffers a heart attack. LOUIS SYMES, Barclay's lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses. Barclay dies at dawn.

Symes tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers proving Barclay's divorce have been stolen. Ellen yields all claim to Barclay's fortune to avoid scandal. She believes she must keep her marriage secret to protect Barclay's honor and her own.

She learns Larry Harrowgate is Barclay's nephew. Heartbroken, she returns home. Larry seeks her out, tells her that his engagement is broken and asks her to marry him. Ellen lacks courage to tell him of her marriage to his uncle. She goes with Larry to meet his mother. A butler appears. It is FERGUS.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVI

FOR an instant Ellen thought she must faint. A feeling of nausea swept over her and her arms dropped to her sides. She fell back weakly, helplessly.

Larry was at her side, his arms around her.

"Water! Bring water," he called frantically.

Fergus brought a tumbler and the distracted Larry bathed the girl's pale face. He held the water to her lips. Still bewildered, still in a world of half-consciousness, horribly frightened and sick, Ellen drank it. Larry half-carried her to an adjoining bedroom, settled her on a frilled chaise longue.

She knew that he was beside her, that his hand held her hand, that he was fanning her. But Ellen could only lie still, her eyes closed, her breath rising and falling unevenly for a long time.

"He didn't tell you," she whispered after a while, without opening her eyes.

"Who told me? What?"

Ellen looked up then and saw that Larry was kneeling on the floor beside her. Mrs. Harrowgate was there, too.

"What came over you?" the older woman inquired curiously.

"It must have been the heat," Ellen managed to say.

"That room is a roaring furnace,"

Larry said sharply. "It was all I could do to keep from passing out myself."

"I'm all right now," Ellen announced shakily, sitting up and smoothing her disordered hair. "I'm sorry to have been such a lot of trouble."

"No trouble at all," Mrs. Harrowgate assured her politely. "I can't tell you how sorry I am though that it had to happen."

But Ellen felt confident that her concern was affected. She looked from Mrs. Harrowgate to Larry. There was nothing artificial in his anxiety. How she loved him! How impossibly cruel that something which had happened long ago might make him cease to love her. If she had only told him everything that day in the studio—

For a moment she clung to the wild hope that Fergus had not recognized her. But she knew there had been recognition in those cold eyes. What did he mean to do? Even as she was wondering the butler entered the room. He carried a pair of gloves.

"I believe these are yours, miss," he said, advancing toward her.

ELLEN'S heart beat violently.

She tried to brace herself for anything the man might say or do. She stared at him with growing panic and tried to read his face. There was nothing there to read except servile impersonality. Larry reached to take the gloves but Fergus, quicker, dropped them in Ellen's lap, turned and left the room, his back stiff and inscrutable as his eyes had been.

Ellen drew a long trembling breath.

"You don't care much for Fergus, do you?" Larry observed. "I don't myself. He's so quiet he gives me the jimmies."

"He's a capable servant," Mrs. Harrowgate commented. "Steven liked him. Are you sure you feel all right now?" she continued, addressing Ellen.

The girl nodded. "I think I'd better go home now," she said.

She and Larry departed, Ellen clinging to his arm and assuring Mrs. Harrowgate that her faintness had disappeared as suddenly as it had come. They were waiting for the elevator before Larry had his chance to speak.

"I asked you before," he said hesitantly. "What did you mean when you said 'So he didn't tell you'?"

Ellen was resting a little against Larry's arm. Her eyes were raised to his. She was exquisitely conscious of everything about her, of the green walls, of the shining brass door of the elevator and the soft, luxurious carpet.

"I didn't mean—anything," she whispered.

Silently they went through the entrance way to the street that was a crystal canyon of ice and snow.

Ellen's gloves were crumpled in her hands. Nervously she began to draw them on and felt in the left glove the crackle of paper. She remembered with a throb of fear how Fergus had avoided Larry's grasp to drop the gloves in her lap. Several times as they rode toward the apartment she stole glances at him, thinking he looked pale and tired and wondering what was in that left glove held so tightly in her palm.

There was no opportunity to find out until after Larry had left her. The instant the door closed behind him she turned the glove inside out. A bit of paper fell into her hand.

Written upon it were the following words:

"I'll see you at your home at eight o'clock. Be there."

The girl dropped the message to the floor, stooped, picked it up and crumpled it into a savage ball which she hurled into the wastebasket. Without troubling to remove her coat, still adorned with Larry's violets, she began to walk up and down the living room. The place was bleakly cold and the whole apartment filled with brooding quiet. When Ellen snapped on the lights she saw Molly had left a note for her on the library table. Molly and Myra had gone to the movies.

"If Bert comes for Myra ask him to wait," Molly had written.

ELLEN crossed to the bedroom, looked inside and observed that Mike was sound asleep, his arms flung youthfully over his head. She entered to adjust the window and shut out the freezing air. She pulled the tumbled bedcovers back into place, half-hoping that her young brother would awaken, but Mike only stirred restlessly. She brushed his hair back from his forehead and thought that he looked rosy and well again. Soon he would be able to get about without the crutches. A hot, wet tear dropped on the cheek of the sleeping boy, but he did not awaken.

Ellen returned to the living room, lighted the gas in the grate and lay down on the divan to stare at the ceiling.

Suddenly it was September again. Steven lay dead in a curtained bedroom of the lavish Long Island house. Ellen saw herself in that hateful sitting room watching Fergus pack her traveling case—a pale, shamed girl, mad with grief and humiliation, who wanted to escape, to run away from an impossible situation. She saw now that she had allowed her own lack of courage to persuade her that a part of her life could be hidden as if it had never existed. That part of her life was as real as any other part. It lived in her own memory and in the memory of a loathsome, suspicious man who was coming to remind her of it. He was coming to remind her that it might cost her the most precious thing in life.

The sky outside grew darker and darker. Snow began to fall invisibly in the darkness.

Suddenly Ellen sprang up and ran downstairs to the telephone. Frantic with restlessness, tapping one foot impatiently as she waited, she called Symes' office. His secretary told her she thought Mr. Symes had gone for the day. Ellen left a message on the chance he might return, a message the lawyer could not fail to understand. Then she went upstairs again.

SHE was still alone when eight o'clock arrived, and with it, prompt to the minute, came Fergus. Seeing him, a small, ugly man in neat blue serge, shook Ellen's courage. The composure of her greeting hid trembling terror. The man carried two strapped bags. He did not leave her long in doubt as to his mission.

"I got to get out of town," he stated baldly, "and I'm stony. I thought maybe you'd lend me $100 or so."

"Just what made you think I would do that?" she asked sharply. "I can't stand around all day talking about ifs and ands," Fergus answered roughly. "I need money and you've got to lend it to me."

Ellen heard the loud ticking of the clock and the drip of a kitchen faucet. She heard the hoarse sound of Fergus' breathing. A way out! Oh, there must be some way out!

"I guess I know my rights," said Fergus abruptly.

"Your rights to what?" "Look here," the butler resumed plaintively, "You don't get me at all. I don't want to tell Mr. Harrowgate where you were the night his uncle died. Going to a girl's sweetheart with a story like that is the last thing I'd want to do!"

"Don't bother to lie," Ellen said contemptuously. "You'd want to go anywhere you could get money. You've been to Larry already. You've written to him and taken money from him anonymously. You haven't even the courage to speak up openly!"

"Never mind about that," Fergus responded sullenly. "That's done. The money's gone. I wish to God I had it now but I haven't. I've got to blow town, I tell you. Something's come up so I've got to clear out. You stake me to a railroad ticket and you're through with me. You'll never see me again, never hear from me again. Neither will Larry."

"You'll get no money from me now or ever," Ellen declared.

"Maybe if I went to Mr. Harrowgate he wouldn't feel that way!" Ellen turned away. She clenched her two hands and felt the hardness of the engagement ring. This was the end, she thought, the end of everything. She knew that if Fergus carried out his threat and went to Larry she could not lie. To evade the truth was difficult enough. To look into Larry's gray eyes and tell him an untruth was impossible.

VETS TO GET BIRCH BARK CANOE AT SPRING MEETING

"BE-WID-JI AT BEMIDJI" INVITATION WILL BE CONVEYED TO DELEGATES

Lapel buttons bearing the slogan "Be-Wid-Ji at Bemidji" will be distributed to 2,500 Gopher Legion and Auxiliary leaders by members of Ralph Gracie Post No. 14 of Bemidji, the 1932 state convention city, when the annual spring conference of the American Legion is held at Hotel Nicolet, Minneapolis, April 8-9.

"Bemidji's Lakes and Trails are Calling," Judge Ralph Bailey will tell the conference, and to doubly impress on their minds the possibility of Northern Minnesota as a vacation land in conjunction with their attendance at the state Legion convention August 21-24, Bemidji members will distribute souvenir birch bark canoes to the delegates.

"Whereas the Bemidji state convention will be the legislative body of the Legion and its Auxiliary for 1932, the annual spring conference at Minneapolis on April 8-9 is in the nature of a get-together of three past and three unit officers from each of 468 Minnesota communities," Department Adjutant C. A. Zwine explains.

The idea of the annual spring conference, Mrs. Blanche W. Scallen, state Auxiliary secretary, points out, is to give these leaders an opportunity to exchange notes, and to hear about the latest methods of helping the disabled and of carrying on the general program, including that of service to the community. There will be schools at which experts in each subject will exemplify the best ways of insuring the success of the activities in which Legion posts and units are interested.

"But all work and no play makes Jack and Jill dull," Adjutant Zwine states, "So after studying at the business sessions on Friday and Saturday, the delegates and their friends will conclude their conference with a banquet, entertainment and dance on Saturday evening, April 9 at Hotel Nicolet, with national leaders as guest speakers."

Oscar F. Youndahl of Minneapolis, commander of The American Legion of Minnesota will preside over the Legion conference meetings. Mrs. Halsey P. Corey, Winona, the state Auxiliary president, will be in charge of the Auxiliary sessions.

NEW YORK TEAMS TO FIGHT IT OUT FOR SECOND IN LEAGUES

New York.—Weighing pennant possibilities and probable order of finish of the American and National league baseball races leaves one with a conviction that most clubs should end the 1932 season almost as they did the last one.

Picking the spots for the 16 clubs is somewhat exhausting and if the clubs and the "angles" are studied strictly on a form basis it would appear that only one club has added enough strength to warrant a definite prediction of advance.

That club is Cincinnati which gained more than it lost in the off-season trading. Here's how the clubs might finish this year.

National	American
St. Louis	Philadelphia
New York	New York
Chicago	Washington
Brooklyn	Cleveland
Cincinnati	St. Louis
Pittsburgh	Boston
Boston	Detroit
Philadelphia	Chicago

Little Rollo or Big Dick, your baseball-wise office boys, will tell you just like that that there's only one real change in the order listed above. Cincinnati was eight in 1931, and is placed fifth this year. The other second division clubs of the National league dropped a peg apiece. The American standings are unchanged.

The strength and weakness of the 16 clubs have already been covered and it is necessary to do no more than point out that if either the St. Louis Cardinals are the Philadelphia Athletics, last year's finalists, should slump or stagger, at least two clubs behind each are capable of properly representing their leagues in world series play.

The Athletics' chances look as good as a royal flush in a game where nothing's wild. They still have that great pitching staff headed by Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw. These lads are in their prime. They should win enough games to insure another pennant for the A's. But if they don't, there are the New York Yankees with their new "million-dollar" infield, and the somewhat improved Washington Senators, ready to advance to the peak.

The Cardinals which were good enough to win the National league pennant and the world's championship are nearly as good as they were a year ago. Chick Hafey, heavy-hitting and fleet outfielder is a holdout. He was a holdout last year but joined the team in time to help win a lot of games. Burleigh Grimes, the old spit-baller, has been sent to Chicago.

On the heels of the Cards are the Giants with their grand pitching staff and bolstered by Len Koenig, outfield hope. Neither Chicago nor Brooklyn, other first division clubs of the National, appear to be as much of a threat for the Cardinals as do the Senators in the American. The Cubs are unsettled. The Dodgers, despite the addition of Hack Wilson and in spite of his vows to walk the "straight 'n' narrer," as Mr. McLe-more would say, also are an experimental club.

San Francisco—Deckhand Jones of the sea-going Manulani has a doleful tale to tell. Man and boy, he's sailed in mast and sailed in steam, but never before was he nursemaid.

"I've harpooned whales by the northern lights and I've sawed off busted masts in a South Seas typhoon," Deckhand Jones sadly said. "I've fought Chinese Pirates and never no complaints from Sailor Jones."

"But scupper me for a landlocked job if I ever again play wet nurse on the high seas."

The Matson freighter Manulani stood out off the Golden Gate for Honolulu, Deckhand Jones profanely explained.

"My rheumatism hurt and I hadda hunch I shouldn't sail," he continued.

"First I heard a foghorn between decks."

"So I goes up to the mate."

"Mate, I says, 'unless my ears is a mite deceivin' I hears foghorns between decks.'"

"Mister, sez he to me, 'them ain't no foghorns, them's cows.'"

"So I goes down."

"There was 32 cows and a spotted bull."

"So I goes back up."

"Mister Mate," says I, 'them's 32 cows and a spotted bull down there. Man an' boy I've done me work, but I ain't no sea goin' cow-boy.'"

"Mister, I says to him, 'they're four new calves down there, and I ain't no nurse.'"

"Mister," says he to me, 'you go down an' tend to them calves, and milk the cows.'"

"So I goes down."

"There was five calves by then, and I gets me some help."

"When we stood off Diamond Head they was 12 calves an' if we hadn't made port soon we'd a been capsize."

PRESENT LETTERS STAPLES CAGERS

Staples—"Dave" MacMillan, head basketball coach of the University of Minnesota, was the principal speaker at the Staples Rotary club banquet held Wednesday evening in the Congregational church parlors, at which the members of the 1932 basketball team of the local school were honor guests. As a fitting climax for the banquet Mr. MacMillan presented each member of the squad, ten in number, their letters for basketball.

This is the second time this school year that letters of award to local athletes have been awarded by one of the coaches from the university. Coach H. O. "Fritz" Crisler having been here at the Father-Son banquet last winter and making the awards to the members of the football squad.

Coach George Haun presided during the program portion of the meeting and introduced the speakers, calling first upon Bob Holliday, captain of the basketball team, who spoke briefly for the team, then Perry M. Attwood, superintendent of the Staples schools, represented the schools and spoke on the benefits derived from athletics in school. Harry Peterson, an alumnus of the Staples schools, was then called upon to represent the alumni of the local school. His talk in turn was followed by the address of MacMillan.

During the course of MacMillan's address he sketched the development of the game of basketball from the time when he, as a player on the champion professional basketball team of the United States, some years ago, to the present time.

He portrayed a former game, when a team could go through a whole season without a foul being called upon them, and almost anything could be done, and how one by one these things which would be classed as fouls now, were eliminated from the game. He gave a personal experience when he was playing against a tall, yet a heavy, strong center. The floor was long and the

Wisconsin Plans Big Welcome for Spears

Madison, Wis.—Dr. Clarence W. Spears, Wisconsin's new football coach, will be given a rousing welcome when he arrives here Saturday from Eugene, Ore., according to plans announced today by Herman Egstad, secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni association.

Because a majority of the students are away for the Easter holidays, the official welcome for Dr. Spears will not be held until April 27 with a banquet in the university gym.

Dr. Spears will meet his assistants, Guy Sundt, Fred Swan and Rube Wagner to discuss the personnel of the squad and plans for spring training which starts Wednesday.

ANTI-STALLING RULE TO BE GIVEN TEST ON MONDAY

Moorhead, Minn.—The new anti-stalling rule of basketball will receive its first test Monday night when two high school teams here will play under the new rules.

The anti-stalling rule was recommended by the rules committee of the National Association of Basketball coaches at a meeting held in Chicago last week.

The new rule, which will be voted on when the rules committee meets in New York this week end, allows the team which gains the ball in its back court only ten seconds to advance the ball past the center line into the offensive court. The penalty for not advancing will be loss of the ball. The rule, it is said, is designed to prevent stalling and to speed up the game.

THE NEWEST Motor Car Style Slip-Stream Design

Come to our showroom and see a really different motor car style—the Slip-Stream body. It's new. It's modern. It's unusually beautiful.

Along with its new distinction in appearance it has the great value of actually making Nash performance even finer because of its aerodynamic design.

Frontal air resistance is reduced by the V-radiator and sloping windshield for their aerodynamic contours go "with" the wind instead of "against" it as do the old-style snub-nose radiator and upright windshield.

At the same time the body taper and Beavertail back minimize rear end vacuum "hold-back", because Nash slip-streams both rear and front.

Thus power-waste is avoided and miles are added to Nash top speed.

Prices at the factory range from $777 to $2055. Wheelbases from 116 inches to 142 inches.
